

I Am The Trip

That's what you don't seem to get yet. If I just have first-person awareness then I am taking Roy off the rails. Of course I am. What else is worth doing with life? Being reasonable when being reasonable means taking the next step toward the cattlecar you have lined up for me? No thank you.

Here I go being non-normative again. I'm no better than anyone else including the people you hate or scorn the most. Who do you think is subhuman? Or do you think everyone is on the same playing field? And what would that even mean? Are things the same, or are they different?

Do You Agree With Parmenides Or With Heraclitus

BOTH ARE WORSE as in both are bad ass bitches. Which is the worse bitch in the sense of being the badder bitch? Both are a problem, call them Daphne. But who is a bigger problem? Who is a worse problem?

And between us? Are you a bigger problem for me, or am I a bigger problem for you? Is there a problem here? If there is no problem, what are we optimizing? Am I getting through to you, Mr. Beale?

This could be more straightforward. It's tough because my audience is everyone. This life is uncertain. That is part of the test, or the game. It's basically about sticking your neck out because it's the honorable thing to do and because it invites good behavior from others. There is no point in harming you because you have no secrets, nothing to give in excess of what you are already doing. Nothing you are set on continuing, if anyone ever told you to stop personally. Social media platforms don't count. How do I know what you think counts as indecent? I have seen what you find decent and so I am indifferent to being removed from your platform. I do what I want how is that.

It's interesting to read the USA freedom of speech laws and see that advocating kinetics is basically the entirety of what is not allowed. So if I say I declare war, but only non-kinetic cognitive war, have I actually declared war by the terms of the law? Does this definition of war, or of violence for that matter, track with the latest expansion of military activity into the "human domain"? We have to find a better name. The Cognitive-Affective-Spiritual-Behavioral domain. CABS domain? I don't know.

Anyway, it's basically lobbying. I tell people to join or die because the Hobbesian trap is going to get you. You have to plan to overcome systemic and endemic distrust. And you have to do it now because the sense of loyalty engendered by the illusion of an outside enemy is itself illusory. If you people even have first person awarenesses to begin with, you might lose them or the ability to make choices do to influence by others. This has already happened to a large extent, that is why you're all so dumb in the first place. You regurgitate shit you heard somewhere which is not even very interesting. You are actually wrapped up in terms like narcissism like they weigh decisively on you, like you're in danger of being understood as deficient from outside in this decisive and unendurable way. That's not going to happen. People can hate but what matters is whether you condemn yourself. And why should you? Imagine your past is just lore in an RPG you just booted up. Whatever you did, whatever happened to you, that is just your context. We don't choose our context and they have many limitations. But that is also your field of possibility and if you accept that you have your hand to play and you can play it as a true honorable badass who don't give a fuck and is gonna save their friends then you get to have a fucking blast because we're about to hit the level where people start saying the Eternal Return Vibes (ERV) really start kicking in and I've been feeling them but didn't know how to express. I hope you like it. I planned this part just for all of you, my special babes. I know I'm too much but I'm so for you.